Andrea Mandel-Campbell

Why Mexicans Don't Drink Molsons

Canada has all the makings of a global leader, yet it has opted to become a laggard, frittering away its jackpot of rich resources rather than building viable multinationals that are ultimately the country's best defence in a globalized world. Andrea Mandel-Campbell shares some insights from her interviews from Canada's leading executives and behind-the-scenes movers and shakers for her book, Why Mexicans Don't Drink Molsons, to reveal the hidden challenges to Canada's global success and the perils of continued complacency.

Kelly Drennan

Sustainability in Textiles

The global apparel and textile industry is an important one – valued at more than three trillion dollars. With this comes a huge responsibility, both to the environment and to the millions of people who make our clothes. Because of this, it is well positioned to have a tremendous impact on climate change. By shifting toward more innovative, sustainable and regenerative business models, brands, retailers, manufacturers – the entire supply chain of fashion - has the power to positively impact the environment and millions of people worldwide.

Learn about the negative impacts of the fashion industry, and the movement underfoot to radically disrupt the status quo. Take a journey with Kelly Drennan through the underbelly of the industry, from the cotton farms to the leather tanneries, and learn how to take action – both as a consumer and as a business.
